Osnovne informacije / Basic info

Nacionalni park Plitvička jezera najstariji je i najveći nacionalni park Republike Hrvatske, poznat po nizu modrozelenih jezera odvojenih sedrenim barijerama. Ovo krško područje karakterizira specifična hidrologija i iznimna biološka raznolikost, zbog čega je Nacionalni Park stekao i međunarodni značaj. Specifične hidrogeološke osobine stijena omogućile su zadržavanje vode na dolomitnim stijenama i kanjonsko urezivanje vode u vapnenačke naslage, zbog čega se jezerski sustav dijeli na Gornja i Donja jezera. Današnji izgled jezerskog sustava uvjetovan je procesom osedavanja kojim nastaju sedrene barijere. Riječ je o iznimno kompleksnom i osjetljivom biodinamičkom procesu koji ovisi o mnogobrojnim ekološkim čimbenicima, a činjenica da se proces odvija i danas dovoljno govori o nenarušenim ekološkim uvjetima. Nacionalni park Plitvička jezera područje je bogatih šumskih i travnjačkih staništa s raznolikom florom i faunom. Šume prekrivaju gotovo 80 % površine Parka, a unutar granica Parka nalazi se i posebni rezervat šumske vegetacije, Čorkova uvala. U pogledu bioraznolikosti Nacionalni park Plitvička jezera predstavlja jedno od najvrjednijih područja Hrvatske u kojem značajan dio populacija mnogih vrsta ugroženih na nacionalnoj i svjetskoj razini ima još uvijek dobro očuvana staništa.

The Plitvice Lakes National Park is the oldest and largest national park in the Republic of Croatia, famous for its numerous turquoise-coloured lakes separated by tufa, or travertine, barriers. Its karst landscape is characterised by specific hydrological traits and exceptional biological diversity, which helped the National Park gain international significance. The specific hydrogeological properties of the Park's rocks have enabled the retention of water on the dolomite rocks and resulted in the water cutting canyons in the limestone deposits. For that reason, the lake system is divided into the Upper and Lower lakes. Today's appearance of the lake system is a result of the tufa formation process, which created the barriers. It is an exceptionally complex and sensitive biodynamic process dependant on numerous ecological factors. The fact that the process is still ongoing tells us that the environmental factors remain intact. The Plitvice Lakes National Park is an area rich in forest and grassland habitats with an abundance of flora and fauna. Almost 80% of the Park's area is covered with forests and, within the boundaries of the National Park, there is also a special forest vegetation reserve, Čorkova Uvala. In terms of biodiversity, the Plitvice Lakes National Park is one of the most valuable regions of Croatia, in which a significant share of the population of many species threatened at national and world level still enjoys the safety of well-preserved habitats.
